I am a single-issue candidate focused on doing something about the warming climate. This is my third run for national office as a climate candidate. My goal in this campaign is to inspire 10% of Utah voters to use their vote to send a strong statement to Washington: Utah wants an effective, non-partisan, transparent solution to climate change. Ten percent of voters can inspire political change. Your vote will urge Congress to work together, bridge political divides, and pass legislation this year to reduce the impacts of climate change. Our future and our children's futures depend on it.

I'm running for the U.S. House of Representatives – not because I want to, but because I have to. The founding charter documents of the United States have been usurped and systematically ignored in a completely treacherous and treasonous attempt to destroy the Republic. This attempt is succeeding. When elected, it will be my 24/7 mission to root out all enemies foreign and domestic by any and all means allowed under common law jurisprudence. My carefully curated staff will vehemently share this mission and we will be beholden to the only stakeholders that matter – the citizens of District 1, Utah.

Peter C. Clemens
Democratic Party

I'm running for Congress because the only way fix our problems is to stop sending professional politicians to Washington, D.C. We need to start sending real people; people who understand the realities of raising a family on a budget and caring for aging parents; people who have created jobs and want to help small businesses do the same.

Congress is broken and Utah's First District Representative is part of the problem. We deserve better. We must demand a representative who cares about doing the right thing, even when it's hard. That's how we become better. We can do better.

Many speak of the deficit of trust between Americans and government. Recent events have eroded that trust to a dangerous level.

I have one goal in Congress: to increase our personal freedoms by reducing the size and scope of government. Whether working to reduce the power of federal agencies, standing up for conservative principles, or protecting our freedom in a dangerous world, I am fighting to restore the balance of power our Founding Fathers intended.

Conservative principles are the only thing that can save us. I will continue to fight for those principles. I will continue to fight for you!

- If a word has a ~~line~~ through it, that means the word is currently in the Constitution and the amendment is deleting it.
- If a word is neither underlined or lined through, that means the amendment is keeping the word in the Constitution.

IMPARTIAL ANALYSIS

The current Utah Constitution requires elected or appointed officers to take an oath of office. The wording of the oath is specified in the Utah Constitution. The oath requires officers to swear to support, obey, and defend the Constitution of the United States and “the Constitution of this State.”

Constitutional Amendment A makes a technical change to the wording of the oath of office. The Amendment changes the wording from “the Constitution of this State” to “the Constitution of the State of Utah.” The Amendment is technical in nature and does not change the meaning of the oath of office or of the Utah Constitution.

Effective Date

If approved by voters, Constitutional Amendment A takes effect January 1, 2017.

Fiscal Impact

Constitutional Amendment A has no fiscal impact.

ARGUMENT IN FAVOR

Currently, the Constitutional oath of office for all state and local officials in Utah does not identify specifically the state for which it is being used. The current language refers only to the Constitution of “this State” and not to the State of Utah. The proposed constitutional amendment corrects this omission by inserting the phrase, “the State of Utah.”

Senate Joint Resolution (S.J.R.) 12

2016 Legislative General Session

IMPARTIAL ANALYSIS

Constitutional Amendment B modifies a provision of the Utah Constitution relating to the permanent State School Fund. The Amendment makes three main changes:

1. it changes the description of what can be distributed from the State School Fund from "interest and dividends" to "earnings";
2. it limits the amount of money that can be distributed from the State School Fund to 4% of the Fund, calculated as provided by statute; and
3. it changes the standard for how the state is required to invest the State School Fund from "safely" to "prudently."

The Amendment also makes technical changes that do not affect the substance of the current Utah Constitution.

Background on the State School Fund

The State School Fund is a fund that was established by the Utah Constitution at statehood. The purpose of the State School Fund is to accumulate money from specified sources to benefit public schools in the state. The Utah Constitution requires that the Fund be safely invested by the state. Expenditures from the Fund may only be for the purpose of supporting public schools. Originally, only "interest" derived from the investment of money in the Fund could be spent for the support of public schools. Later, that was changed to "interest and dividends." Other than those allowed expenditures, any money deposited into the Fund and any unspent interest and dividends are required to remain in the Fund. The current Utah Constitution does not limit how much of the "interest and dividends" may be spent for the support of public schools.

Effect of Constitutional Amendment B

1. Change from "interest and dividends" to "earnings"

The Utah Constitution currently provides that only "interest and dividends" received from investment of the State School Fund may be spent for the support of public schools. The language "interest and dividends" does not capture all the ways that the Fund could generate earnings. For example, "interest and dividends" does not include earnings that result from increases in the value of stock that the Fund purchases and later sells at a higher price. Under the current Utah Constitution, money earned from investment of the Fund that is not "interest and dividends" cannot be spent for the support of public schools.

Constitutional Amendment B modifies the description of what can be distributed from the State School Fund. The Amendment replaces "interest and dividends" with "earnings." The term "earnings" includes interest and dividends but also includes other ways the Fund earns money on the investment of money in the State School Fund. This change means that all money earned from the investment of money in the Fund – not just money earned as interest or dividends – will be available to be distributed for the support of public schools.

2. Limit on distributions from the State School Fund

The Utah Constitution currently does not contain a limit on the amount of "interest and dividends" that may be expended for the support of public schools. Under the current Utah Constitution, all interest and dividends earned in any given year could be spent for the support of public schools.

Constitutional Amendment B provides that annual distributions from the State School Fund may not exceed 4% of the Fund. What constitutes 4% of the Fund is to be calculated as provided by statute.

That statutory calculation is provided in S.B. 109, School and Institutional Trust Lands Amendments, which passed during the 2016 General Session of the Legislature and takes effect at the same time as Constitutional Amendment B if the Amendment is approved by voters. S.B. 109 defines the limit on distribution from the State School Fund as 4% of the average market value of the Fund over the past 12 consecutive quarters.

3. Change from "safely" to "prudently"

The Utah Constitution currently requires the State School Fund to be "safely" invested by the state. The dictionary meaning of "safely" suggests that the investment is done in a manner that is free from harm or risk. The term is not commonly used in the investment community to describe how an investment manager should invest money. There is a risk associated with any investment.

Constitutional Amendment B changes the description of how the state is required to invest money in the State School Fund. The Amendment replaces "safely" with "prudently." The dictionary meaning of "prudently" suggests that the investment is done in a manner marked by wisdom or judiciousness. The term "prudent" or "prudently" is commonly used in the investment community to describe the responsibility of someone investing money on behalf of another.

Effective Date

If approved by voters, Constitutional Amendment B takes effect July 1, 2017.

Fiscal Impact

The State School Fund has approximately $2.1 billion in assets. Under Constitutional Amendment B, the amount of cash the State School Fund will receive as "earnings" from the investment of the Fund during the first year the Amendment is implemented is estimated to be $79,000,000. That amount is $22,000,000 more than the $57,000,000 that the Fund is estimated to receive from "interest and dividends" alone. The fiscal impact of Constitutional Amendment B will depend on how much of the additional "earnings" that exceed "interest and dividends" is distributed for the support of public schools and how much is retained in the Fund to increase the total dollar value of the Fund. The greater the amount of "earnings" that are distributed, the less the Fund increases in dollar value, and the less money there is to generate future "earnings."

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT B

ARGUMENT IN FAVOR

Amendment B is a small update in the state constitution that will make a big difference.

If you approve this amendment, the state will be allowed to implement best practices in investment management to continue building the School Trust Fund while still balancing our responsibilities to support current and future students. The state will be able to prudently increase the distribution from the School Trust Lands program by up to 50% over the next few years while adding millions of dollars to our educational system.

Result: the fund will be better managed, distributions will be grounded in economic principles, and local schools will receive more money, both now and in the future.

Education leaders support Amendment B. Increasing distributions will allow our school community councils to continue the work of meaningful school improvement. These local teams decide the best academic use for the funds - school by school.

Financial leaders support Amendment B. By updating the distribution policy from the School Trust Fund to consider a percentage of earnings, student enrollment growth and inflation, instead of simple interest and dividends, the School and Institutional Trust Fund Board of Trustees will be able to apply best investment practices to growing the fund while also increasing distributions.

Student Advocates Support Amendment B. The amendment includes a 4% cap on the distribution so the fund will continue to build. This will protect the fund principal, allow it to grow and provide more money to schools now and in the future.

State Officials support Amendment B. The State Board of Education, as well as the Governor, State Treasurer, Trust Land Board of Trustees and Trust Fund Board of Trustees, State House of Representatives, and the State Senate all support Amendment B.

Thank you for your concern for our state's finances and schoolchildren. We hope you will join with all of us and vote YES on Amendment B!

Ann Millner
Utah State Senator

Mel Brown
Utah State Representative

David Damschen
Utah State Treasurer

REBUTTAL TO ARGUMENT IN FAVOR

The money sent annually to the Community Council of each Utah school from Utah's School Trust Fund is some of the most scrutinized and well spent money in the state. Thoughtful parents and other Community Council members diligently evaluate the most effective way to utilize the monies for their school's specific needs. The community councils then appropriate the money accordingly for the unique needs of their own neighborhood schools.

The proposed Constitutional Amendment will not only change investment strategies by having fewer eyes reviewing the management plans, but it will also prescribe a set amount of money to be given annually to each school. The Community Councils will now know exactly how much money is coming each year, and the option to automatically build that annual distribution from SITLA in to the school budget will result in a lack of opportunity for parental review and annual decision making. Opportunities to address a new or current need could be lost.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT B

The current successful strategy grows the fund at a competitive rate, earning millions of dollars for Utah's schools annually without touching the 'seed' money of the fund. Distributions are made that reflect the markets, allowing the corpus to continue to grow and enhance education budgets. This is the prudent path forward.

Vote no on Amendment B

Margaret Dayton – Utah State Senate

Scott Jenkins – Utah State Senate

ARGUMENT AGAINST

This resolution proposes to change the management of Utah's State School Trust Fund, both in investment strategy and in the fund's distribution to Utah's schools.

It would be a mistake to modify the fund for the following reasons:

- The current fund works
- Changing it could be reckless
- The focus should be on the long-term health and sustainability of student funding

In the last thirty years, the fund has grown from $18m to approximately $2b! The growth has been safe, predictable, and beneficial to public education. Only the interest and dividends from those investments may be expended for the support of the public education system. The current plan has been a boon to all of public education.

This resolution will modify the current successful fund plan to follow an endowment model of investment. As endowments have gained attention and support over the years, some investment analysts have warned that endowments may not always be the right solution for institutional investors.

Utah's current fund strategy has done well in comparison to other western states. In 2012, a USU study analyzed the management of funds in the 20 states that still hold school trust lands. The study indicated that Utah enjoyed the second highest rate of growth among all of the western states, including those using an endowment investment strategy.

It is clear that Utah has been very competitive in its current investment strategy even in comparison to those currently using an endowment model. Utah should maintain that successful course.

While this strategy could perhaps increase the fund's annual distribution, that increase would be achieved at the expense of predictable and demonstrated long-term growth.

Under the current strategy, Utah's fund has grown to around $2b today. It would be a mistake to treat this burgeoning fund recklessly and sacrifice growth and stability to benefit some schools now to the detriment of schools in the future.

Vote No on Constitutional Amendment B

Margaret Dayton – Utah State Senate

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT B

REBUTTAL TO ARGUMENT AGAINST

It is not often that a small change will provide dramatic results. Passage of Amendment B will make the School Trust Fund's annual distribution more stable, predictable and fair. It will safeguard the fund while providing a more consistent revenue stream. The fund will distribute more to meet current needs while continuing to grow for future needs.

Amendment B will update an outdated distribution policy with one that is based on best practices from trust management. Lessons from past market cycles and simulations of future scenarios were extensively studied and incorporated into the design of this proposal. This is an important and necessary step to increase current funding, stabilize the annual distribution, and improve long term results.

We have a responsibility to school children today and in the future to make sure we have the best investment and distribution policy available. After careful study and expert analysis, we agree that Amendment B is a simple change that makes important improvements over the current, outdated policy. That's why we encourage you to vote YES on Amendment B!

IMPARTIAL ANALYSIS

Constitutional Amendment C modifies a provision of the Utah Constitution relating to property tax exemptions. The Amendment authorizes the creation of a property tax exemption for tangible personal property--such as machinery, office furniture, or equipment--that is leased by the state or by a political subdivision of the state, as the Legislature provides by statute.

Property Tax on Leased Property Under the Current Utah Constitution

Under the current Utah Constitution, the state does not pay property tax on property the state owns. Likewise, counties, cities, towns, school districts, and other political subdivisions of the state do not pay property tax on property they own. The reason is that under the Utah Constitution, property that is owned by the state or by a political subdivision of the state is exempt from property tax.

The state and political subdivisions of the state do not own all the property they use. Sometimes the state or a political subdivision leases property from a private owner. Because that leased property is owned by a private owner, it is subject to property tax. The property tax exemption for property owned by the state or a political subdivision does not apply because the property is not owned by the state or political subdivision; it is owned by a private owner. The cost of the property tax paid by the private owner is factored into the amount the owner charges the state or political subdivision for the lease of that property. In effect, the state or political subdivision ends up paying some or all of the property tax on that leased property.

Effect of Constitutional Amendment C

Constitutional Amendment C authorizes the Legislature to provide by statute for a property tax exemption for tangible personal property that is leased by the state or by a political subdivision of the state. The Amendment does not allow for the exemption of all property leased by the state or a political subdivision. It does not allow for the exemption of leased real property, such as land or buildings. The Amendment allows for a property tax exemption only for tangible personal property, such as machinery, office furniture, or equipment, that is leased by the state or a political subdivision. Because the tangible personal property is exempt from property tax "as provided by statute," the Legislature has flexibility to fashion the exemption as it determines best.

Implementing Legislation

During the 2016 General Session of the Legislature, the Legislature enacted S.B. 68, Property Tax Amendments, which takes effect at the same time as Constitutional Amendment C if the Amendment is approved by voters. S.B. 68 provides a property tax exemption for machinery and equipment leased by the state or by a political subdivision of the state. To qualify for the exemption, the machinery or equipment must have an economic life of three years or more and be subject to a lease with a term of one year or more.

Effective Date

If approved by voters, Constitutional Amendment C takes effect January 1, 2017.

Fiscal Impact

Constitutional Amendment C has no fiscal impact on state and local government revenue. The Amendment may result in a reduction in leasing costs for those state or local government entities that lease tangible personal property that becomes exempt from property tax under the Amendment.

Constitutional Amendment C may result in a slight shift in property tax burden as some previously taxable property drops off the property tax rolls because of the property tax exemption allowed under the Amendment. For an owner of a $250,000 residential home, the shift is estimated to result in an annual property tax increase of $0.01. For the owner of a $1,000,000 business, the shift is estimated to result in an annual property tax increase of $0.05.

ARGUMENT IN FAVOR

Transparency and Accountability:

This amendment clarifies that a taxing entity that imposes and collects a tax will keep that tax and will use it and be accountable for the purpose for which it was imposed.

Currently in the Constitution:

Currently, the Constitution provides a property tax exemption for State owned property. When the State leases tangible property (truck, server, office equipment for example) from a private owner, there is no property tax exemption. The private owner receives a property tax bill from the county and sends it to the leasing governmental entity for payment. This process launches a shell game with the property tax between governmental entities and costs the State and taxpayers more money.

The Current Problem:

Currently, the property tax revenue on the leased item is distributed to other taxing entities that did not vote to impose the tax. Transparency is clouded and receiving entities benefit without full accountability to the taxpayers and voters for the extra shared revenue they received.

School District Example:

Under current provisions, if a school district signs a long term lease of a copy machine, they are required to pay the annual property tax on that equipment. That tax payment is made to the county. The county then divides the school district's paid tax according to the apportionment formula. The county then sends the tax paid by the school district out to the other taxing entities in the county such as the city, county and special service districts. If a school district pays $2,000, for example, of taxes they may get $700 back and the rest is divided up to the other taxing entities that did not impose the tax.

What this amendment does:

This amendment would expand the property tax exemption to include leased tangible properties with life expectancies of at least 3 years. This would treat government leased property the same as all government owned property for the duration of the lease. This also prevents the tax revenue from the leased property from being shared with outside taxing entities that did not vote to impose the tax.

Why this amendment?

- Strengthens transparency and accountability
- Encourages representation with taxation
- Promotes correct fiscal procedures
- Keeps the property tax with the entity that imposes it
- Reduces government spending on leased tangible property

How does this impact me?

- Gives you greater power to hold taxing entities accountable for tax revenue and votes they make

What this is all about:

Should a city, county or school district keep the property taxes its elected officials have imposed or should some of its taxes be shared with other taxing entities? When taxes are shared with outside taxing entities there is a lack of transparency and accountability to the voter. That is the heart of this constitutional amendment.

Please vote yes on Amendment (C) to provide clarity, transparency and improve our tax process.

Representative Ken Ivory

REBUTTAL TO ARGUMENT IN FAVOR

Those favoring Amendment C misunderstand the property tax process. They say that if a school district leases a copy machine, the school district has to pay property tax. This is factually wrong. The owner of the copy machine pays the property tax, not the school district. Whether that business owner passes that property tax on to the school district, absorbs that cost, or passes it on to their other customers is up to the business owner. Current law does not require the business owner to pass the tax on to the school district.

Those favoring Amendment C don't identify what problem they are trying to solve or explain why we need to amend our state Constitution to solve it. In fact, there is no problem with the current way we handle property taxes for individuals and corporations that lease property to the state of Utah. Amendment C simply allows a few owners of personal property in Utah off the hook for paying their fair share of property taxes.

This proposal does not help Utahns. It helps a very small, specific group of business owners get a little more profit out of their contracts with the state of Utah. Our Constitution should only be changed when it is in the best interest of all Utahns, not just a select few.

Vote "no" on Amendment C.

Representative Brian King

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT C

ARGUMENT AGAINST

Constitutional Amendment C would change Utah's Constitution to exclude certain businesses from being required to pay property tax. It would allow a few companies owning equipment and machinery to keep the property tax money they now have to pay under the Constitution. This proposed Constitutional amendment is unnecessary, unwise, and violates basic principles of good tax policy.

First, it is unnecessary. Utah's state Constitution is the document that, along with the U.S. Constitution, governs our state laws. It has been amended at various times in Utah's 120-year history. But it is not something that we have changed unless we have good, important reasons. This amendment to the Constitution would affect only a few businesses which own equipment or machinery they lease to the state of Utah or its subdivisions such as counties, cities, or towns. Is it really a good idea to go to the extreme length of amending the state constitution just so a few for-profit businesses can save tax dollars each year? I don't think so.

Second, it is unwise. Each of us pays our fair share of tax dollars so we can all get important services from our government. Our money pays for essential services like educating our children, building and fixing our roads, making sure our air and water are clean, maintaining the beauty of our canyons and parks, paying our firefighters and police officers, and delivering clean water to our homes. We want as many people as possible pushing the wagon up the hill and as few as possible riding in the wagon. I've listened carefully for a good reason why these businesses should be relieved of their fair share of property taxes that other owners of machinery and equipment have to pay. No one has explained to me why these companies should be able to save themselves money and get a break from helping pay for the critical things that make our state run smoothly.

Finally passing this proposal is not good tax policy. For years we have heard tax experts say that good tax policy "broadens the base and lowers the rate." What does that mean? It means that, generally, we want more, rather than fewer, people to pay the cost of operating government. We want more people pushing the wagon and fewer people getting a free ride in it. Generally we want more people contributing the money we need to run the state because that is the best way to keep the tax rates for everyone as low as possible.

However, this constitutional proposal takes us away from the broad tax base that calls for everyone to pay a fair share. If it passes, some taxpayers will pay no taxes on income they receive from the lease of equipment to the state government and other taxpayers will have to pay more to make up for that loss. That's bad tax policy.

Vote No on Constitutional Amendment C.

Representative Brian King

REBUTTAL TO ARGUMENT AGAINST

The opposition response has three errors in it.

Erroneous Claim 1

The opposition to Amendment C asserts that it will unfairly advantage a select few businesses. This is not true. The businesses that lease property to a city or county are not the ones paying property tax as things currently stand. When a city or county leases equipment they pay the property tax, not the business. When the lease ends, the owner of the property resumes payment of the property tax.

Erroneous Claim 2

The opposition claims there will be a large tax burden imposed on the taxpayers. As shown in the fiscal impact analysis, the impact on the general public will be negligible.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT C

Erroneous Claim 3

Also worth noting is the blatantly incorrect claim that this amendment will exempt business owners who lease property to the state from paying taxes on income from the leased property. This amendment has nothing to do with income tax. Property owners will still pay income tax.

Transparency & Accountability

Under the constitution, we are currently forcing some taxing entities to pay property taxes which are then distributed to other taxing entities.

This amendment enhances transparency, simplicity and the voice of the taxpayer by keeping all collected taxes within the taxing entity so citizens are able to hold the entity responsible. Presently, there is a shell game occurring where the taxes are shuffled between agencies and different taxing entities – this Amendment will end the shell game. This amendment promotes transparency, simplicity, and government accountability.

JUDGES

How does Utah choose its judges?

The Utah Constitution states: “Selection of judges shall be based solely upon consideration of fitness for office without regard to any partisan political consideration.” To fulfill this mandate, Utah selects its state court judges through a process called Merit Selection.

Merit Selection involves four steps: 1) nomination; 2) appointment; 3) confirmation; and 4) retention election. A committee of lawyers and non-lawyers selected by the Governor reviews judicial applications, conducts interviews, and then nominates the five best-qualified applicants for each trial court judgeship and the seven best-qualified applicants for each appellate court judgeship. The Governor then interviews all nominees and appoints one, who must then be confirmed by a majority of the Utah State Senate.

After confirmation, the new judge’s name appears on the ballot for a “yes” or “no” retention vote by the public in the first general election held more than 3 years after the appointment is complete. A simple majority of “yes” votes earns the judge another term in office. Supreme Court justices serve 10 year terms; all other judges serve six-year terms.

Why does Utah use Merit Selection? This method of selecting judges is widely considered the best way to balance the need for judges to be accountable to the public with the equally important need for the judiciary to function independently. Judges serve the public and should answer to the public. That’s why Utah has retention elections – to give every citizen the right to weigh in on judges. Of equal importance, though, every judge must resolve disputes impartially and make decisions based only on the facts and the law. To do so, judges must be insulated from public pressure and politics. That’s why all judicial candidates are non-partisan and why Utah does not have contested elections for judgeships.

What exactly are judicial retention elections?

The Utah Constitution requires that all judges run in a retention election at the end of each term of office. In that election, the public votes “yes” or “no” on whether each judge should be retained for another term of office. A simple majority carries the day.

The retention election helps keep judges independent by insulating them from partisan politics. At the same time, by allowing every voter to weigh in, the election process ensures that judges remain accountable to the public. To cast an informed vote, the public can first read about the judges either in the Voter Information Pamphlet or online at judges.utah.gov or vote.utah.gov.

How does Utah evaluate its judges?

The Judicial Performance Evaluation Commission is an independent, 13-member group of lawyers and non-lawyers. Each of the three branches of government appoints an equal number of its members.

The Commission must by law evaluate all judges twice during their terms of office. The first evaluation gives the judges the opportunity for self-improvement. The second evaluation gives the public information to use in casting their votes. As part of the second evaluation, the Commission votes on whether or not to recommend the judge for another term in office. Sometimes, the votes will not total 13. This happens when a commissioner does not vote because of personal or professional relationships with a judge that could affect an unbiased evaluation or when a commissioner is absent from the meeting at which the vote is taken.

The evaluation includes several elements. Online surveys are sent to attorneys, court staff, and jurors. In addition, trained courtroom observers spend a minimum of two hours in each judge's courtroom and submit written narrative reports of their observations on each judge. Each judge must also meet ethical standards as well as court standards for judicial education, timeliness, and fitness to serve. Finally, the commission considers comments submitted to judges.utah.gov from members of the public who have first-hand experience with a judge. The commission considers all this information, and then each commissioner casts a vote either for or against recommending the judge for another term of office.

By law, judges have the right to see the results of their evaluation before making the decision to run for another term of office in a judicial retention election. If the judge chooses to run for retention election, the report on the judge is made available to the public in the Voter Information Pamphlet and online at judges.utah.gov. If the judge chooses not to run for retention election, the evaluation is, by law, a protected record. If a judge opts to retire before an evaluation is complete, the evaluation is not completed for a judge.

What are the criteria for evaluating the judges?

The statute governing judicial surveys requires questions about:

1. Legal Ability, including:

- demonstration of understanding of the substantive law and any relevant rules of procedure and evidence;
- attentiveness to factual and legal issues before the court;
- adherence to precedent and ability to clearly explain departures from precedent;
- grasp of the practical impact on the parties of the judge's rulings, including the effect of delay and increased litigation expense;
- ability to write clear judicial opinions; and
- ability to clearly explain the legal basis for judicial opinions; and

2. Judicial Temperament & Integrity, including:

- demonstration of courtesy toward attorneys, court staff, and others in the judge's court;
- maintenance of decorum in the courtroom;
- demonstration of judicial demeanor and personal attributes that promote public trust and confidence in the judicial system;
- preparedness for oral argument;
- avoidance of impropriety or the appearance of impropriety;
- display of fairness and impartiality toward all parties; and
- ability to clearly communicate, including the ability to explain the basis for written rulings, court procedures, and decisions; and

3. Administrative Performance, including:

- management of workload;
- sharing proportionally the workload within the court or district; and
- issuance of opinions and orders without unnecessary delay.

What does it take to “pass” a judicial evaluation?

1. The judge must earn an average score of 3.6 or higher on a scale of 1 to 5 (or no less than 65%) on each survey category (Legal Ability, Judicial Temperament & Integrity, and Administrative Skills);
2. The judge must demonstrate by a preponderance of the evidence, based on courtroom observations and relevant survey responses, that the judge’s conduct in court promotes procedural fairness for court participants;
3. The judge must have no more than one public reprimand issued by the Judicial Conduct Commission or the Utah Supreme Court during the judge’s current term; and
4. The judge must meet all performance standards established by the Judicial Council, including:
 - annual judicial education hourly requirement;
 - case-under-advisement standard; and
 - physical and mental competence to hold office.

If a judge meets all of these standards, it is presumed that the Commission will recommend that the voters retain the judge for another term of office. If the judge fails to meet the standards, it is presumed that the Commission will not recommend retention. If the Commission does not go along with a presumption or chooses to make no retention recommendation at all, it must explain in detail the reasons for its action.

What about justice court judges?

Justice court judges are selected through a merit selection process roughly similar to state court judges, except that the appointing authority is the municipality or county rather than the governor. Justice court judges serve six-year terms of office and stand for retention elections like state court judges.

Justice courts vary widely in terms of case loads and the numbers of attorneys appearing in the court. Based on this variation, there are three levels of evaluations to which a justice court judge may be subject.

- Full evaluation: These justice court judges are subject to the same standards and evaluation measures as state court judges. Fifty-two justice court judges received a full evaluation in 2016.
- Mid-level evaluation: These justice court judges receive an intercept evaluation survey of court users and must meet judicial discipline standards and performance standards established by the Judicial Council. There are no mid-level justice court judges in 2016.
- Basic evaluation: These justice court judges must meet the judicial discipline standards and performance standards established by the Judicial Council. Forty-six justice court judges received a basic evaluation in 2016.

- Commission Vote Count: 12-0 (for retention)

Appointed in 1996, Judge Kevin Christensen scores consistent with the average of his justice court peers in all survey categories. Survey respondents describe him as a fair and impartial judge who gives people a full opportunity to speak, listens carefully, and treats people well. From a list, respondents choose 92% positive adjectives to describe him, emphasizing his consistency, legal knowledge, and polite manner. He has since paid back the excess, and the commission is satisfied with the outcome. The commission believes the matter should have no influence on the retention decision.

The commission reviewed surveys and courtroom observation reports in addition to verifying that Judge Christensen has met all time standards, judicial education requirements, and discipline standards established by the judicial branch.
