Qualifications: I am running for the State Senate to give a voice to the people who want a NEW VISION for Washington County. There is no question our county is facing unprecedented challenges. Our cities are overgrowing and our farms are threatened. We are at risk of losing the clean air and pristine views that have drawn us or kept us here. I am from a fourth generation pioneer family born in St. George. My children are the fifth. I am concerned for the seventh generation and beyond. Why do we have to accept that the population is going to grow to the alarming numbers that are predicted, and lose what we love about living in this landscape?

I have a vision for Washington County that can lead to rational development with a sustainable future. I believe a county wide discussion should occur to determine how we should use our available natural resources and how populated we want to be. By doing so, we can manage and plan the way the Country grows, enabling us to:

- encourage diversified city planning, for rural and urban environments,
- plan ahead for public transportation and roads, before congestion occurs,
- ensure that future development includes affordable housing,
- move from a construction-based to a tourist and light industry based economy,
- become net exporters of renewable energy,
- reconsider spending billions of dollars on an unnecessary pipeline; and direct our resources to schools, law enforcement, parks, and community.

I truly believe the citizens of this County are ready to face the challenges ahead and consider a new way of doing business. An informed populace is the key. Referendums will decide big issues such as the pipeline and the build-out number. And the people will decide who they will elect this fall to take these issues on. I want to represent the will of an informed public to plan for the County's future, while protecting its landscape and lifestyle. These important issues require someone at the State Capitol who will fight for them and gain State support. I will be a strong voice in the State Senate for the people of Washington County.
