Our State Legislature is faced with major policy decisions in 2009 that will dramatically affect District 40, including:

- energy costs and solutions
- teacher's salaries
- township status
- taxation and inflation
- healthcare options

Within Utah's borders, there are oil and energy opportunities that can spur the economy now and develop long-term dependence on renewable resources for the future. Teachers are underpaid for the work they provide our children.

Taxes are too high--property taxes continue to increase, without residents experiencing any reflection on the household income. Healthcare stretches too many families, and solutions need to be brought forward on a state-wide level.

Six years ago, Daniel's father left the company and Daniel has led the family company since. During his tenure as President, he has seen dangerous dips in the economy and dynamic economic growth. Achieving balance during such variation has been a solid training ground for leadership, and as he exceeds expectations in the face of the recession, his company is now stronger than at any point in its 30-year history.

Daniel brings his business background, his strong ethical code, and his energy to the people of District 40 as he runs for State Legislature.
