

Candidate for Sandy City Council at Large

David Kingsbury is the candidate for Sandy City Council at Large. He is a married father of four with a passion for family and his community. David has been active in Sandy as a volunteer as well as volunteering and fundraising for Down syndrome organizations. David received his bachelors degree in Business Management in Salt Lake City and holds a director position for a leading Utah manufacturer. This experience enables him to manage budgets and make decisions for the good of both Sandy citizens and local business. He is dedicated to bringing your voice to the Sandy City government decision making process.

David first moved to Sandy 16 years ago to raise his family because of its appeal as a quiet and safe community. "I am dedicated to keeping Sandy a great place to live and enjoy". David's hobbies include home renovation projects, the outdoors, camping, restoring old bicycles, and a little paintballing with his kids. He also is active in either coaching kid's sports or sitting on the sideline cheering them on. He is also a car show judge as well as a collector of old Schwinn bicycles. "I am ready to be your voice in Sandy City".
